COURSE OFFERINGS

TRAINING TRIAD: In Tennessee, there are two credentialing designations for mediators – General Civil and Family – and one specially trained listing for Domestic Violence. To help professionals meet the educational requirements for these designations, PDRS offers the Training Triad. This program is a comprehensive learning experience that provides participants with the complete spectrum of basic training necessary to apply for these listings with the Tennessee Supreme Court and other states. Participants who complete this series will:

- Fulfill their basic mediation education
- Have marketable skills
- Become part of the PDRS Referral System

• 40-HOUR GENERAL CIVIL MEDIATION TRAINING: This fast-paced executive semester teaches the basic skills and techniques for practicing and/or participating in general civil mediation. You will learn the fundamentals of mediation and mediation advocacy; the concepts of mediation law; and the standards of conduct and ethics under Tennessee Supreme Court Rule 31. Through peer exchange, group exercise and evaluative role plays, you will acquire and develop negotiation and other collaborative problem-solving skills useful in mediation and other professional settings.

• 46-HOUR FAMILY MEDIATION TRAINING: This is a comprehensive course that teaches the knowledge and skills of mediation as it relates to family and relationship conflict and divorce. You will learn state rules, statutes and local forms regarding family mediation and examine ethical dilemmas arising in the family mediation context. Through intense individual and group exercise and role play, you will further develop your mediation and communication skills. In addition, sections dedicated to family law, psychological issues in divorce, needs of children and an introduction to the dynamics of domestic violence will prepare you to participate competently in the Family Mediation process and other collaborative problem-solving situations.

• 12-HR DOMESTIC VIOLENCE TRAINING: The Center for Disease Control and Prevention reports that nearly 3 in 10 women and 1 in 10 men in the US have been victims of intimate partner violence at some point in their lifetime. Based on these statistics, it is inevitable that all Family mediators will, at some point, face the issue of domestic violence in a mediation. Understanding the dynamics and possessing skills to deal with the behaviors are significant, whether or not you choose to be listed as specially trained.

In this course, you will learn the dynamics of domestic violence, the basic skills to recognize abuser and victim behaviors and techniques for dealing with parties in family, employment and other professional settings where domestic violence may be an issue. You will enhance your knowledge of law and ethics; learn how to incorporate safety assessments and planning in to all mediations and gain a better understanding of needs of children in domestic violence situations. For Rule 31 Listed Family Mediators who wish to be listed as specially trained in domestic violence.

Truly a MUST for all mediators!

• CONTINUING EDUCATION OBLIGATIONS: All PDRS courses are approved by the TN Commission on CLE and Specialization, TN Alternative Dispute Resolution Commission and by professional governing agencies in other states, as requested. They include updates in case and statutory law, and – based on subject matter – specialized negotiation and communication skills and collaborative problem-solving skills.

• CUSTOMIZED CORPORATE TRAINING: We specialize in the development and implementation of courses tailored to individual subject matter. Areas of expertise include Healthcare, Employment and Law and Ethics in professional practice.
